DUTY

If every patriotic, home-loving citizen of Carter county can feel that it is not only his duty but a great privilege to put his shoulder to the great wheel that was set in motion at the good roads meeting on Thursday night, then success is assured.

There may be some of us that do not feel that we should be called upon at this time for our support, but are we not interested in the present and future happiness of our children, and the development of our schools, churches and county?

My friends, the sooner we feel our individual responsibility, and sincerely begin doing our duty the sooner we will get the result that we so earnestly desire. Remember that one bee cannot make honey. Let's not leave all the work to our executive committee, all get together and help them in the good roads movement that is now under way, there is honor enough for us all, so let's do our share.

Now is the accepted time for all our people to work together and pull as one man. If we cannot be a $500 member, let us be a $100 member, but be a member and get on the honor roll.

Our mayor, with the city and county commissioners have gone into this work in earnest, after many deliberations they have pulled off their coats, rolled up their sleeves, have burned all bridges behind them they have been assured of the hearty co-operation of the citizens, and the slogan is, fall in line, forward, march, become a member and do our duty, show by our works that we really have royal red blood coursing in our veins.

It is as much the duty of one citizen as it is of another. It has been truthfully said that the doctrine of good roads is one of peace and not of war—one of intelligence and not of ignorance, one of industry and not of idleness, one of morality and not of vice, one of independence and not dependence.

The good roads doctrine is one that all fraternal, religious, political orders, all nationalities can heartily join in.

The benefits come first to the farmers, the schools and colleges, then the merchants, newspapers, and all classes of laborers will receive their share of the blessing.

We could go on and on writing not only columns but pages, telling of benefits that will result from the creating of the good roads movement that has been started in Carter county by Val Muller and the city commissioners, G. W. Young, Jim Tallaferra and George Evans.

Let's examine ourselves and see if we have done our duty. There are many reasons, entirely too many, to enumerate, why Ardmore and Carter county should set the pace for others to follow. Let's do our duty. Then our children will rise up and call us blessed.

Among the five candidates for governor in Mississippi, not one has long hair. That probably accounts for a close race.

The Wilson News is out, with the name of George H. Wyatt at the masthead as editor. The News says it has not entered the Wilson field to reform the county, leaving that work to the preachers; neither has it come to revolutionize the state as the Mexicans have proven themselves best at revolution. The best local paper in the state, is the aim of the new publication. Wilson deserves a good paper and will support a good paper. It is the youngest town in the county, but it has many substantial buildings and is in one of the best oil and agricultural portions of the southern side of the state. Editor Wyatt will not sleep on the job, he is energetic and intelligent and has been in the game for a sufficient length of time to make a success out of his venture.

There is either a Methodist or a Baptist church at every cross roads in the country, and the Christian church has begun a missionary campaign to divide the honors in evangelical work in the towns and communities of this portion of the state. The vast number of Baptist and Methodist churches is due to the missionary work these churches have done. They have been in the battle since the first settlers came to live in Indian Territory. The local Christian church has resolved to organize at least one new church every year. That means a missionary work that will impart an interest to every member of the organization, and as the branch churches grow, the good results will be felt in the local church.

State conventions will begin to be held within six months from now for the purpose of selecting delegates to the national conventions which will nominate party candidates for president. For the democratic convention, Dallas, Denver, Chicago, Saint Louis and Philadelphia are candidates. Dallas is making a vigorous fight and naturally Oklahoma would like to see one convention brought south. The old idea that the holding of a convention within a state will influence the vote of that state, is worn out. Dallas deserves to win. Texas deserves the honor.

Taking a message to the city of Mexico is not quite so easy as taking a message to Garcia and is far from being as poetic. Allan Mallory, a young American who started with a sealed message to the Mexican capital was interrupted en route, one of his companions was taken away to be slain, he was beaten over the head with a gun, and threatened with death, another of his companions was dragged through the streets of a town on the way, and the official message was taken. Annexation will solve the Mexican problem.

If Russia succeeds in establishing a warm water port, its wheat exports will force prices in this country to fifty cents. But Russia is so far from victory and so far from being able to dictate terms of peace that its liability to disturb the American wheat market is far removed.

The ministers of the city will at least for one Sunday evening abandon the church house and all will worship together at the Ardmore tonight. Dr. Welch of the Presbyterian church will preach the sermon. An invitation is extended to all to come.

Memphis booze men, some of whom are prominent in politics are spending their summer vacations in the county work house. They sold the wet goods in violation of a court order and were given jail sentences for contempt of court.

A San Francisco minister has discovered that there is no such God, no such devil, no such heaven and no such hell as Billie Sunday preaches. Still the crowds come to hear the former baseball player and pay the price to see the show.

Wirt will scarcely know itself when its electric light system has been installed. Here are our congratulations to the oil field town.

Soon be time for cheap railroad fares to be advertised to California.

Portugal has three revolutions now in progress and is fast assuming the sobriquet of "Mexico of Europe."

The Critic's Office.

A friend who is preparing a paper on criticism asked us our notion of a critic, and the best we could do off-hand was to bring to mind the young hero who, finding a break in a dike, thrust his arm into the hole and held back the devastating flood until help arrived. The flood is mediocrity, and criticism should be a dike holding it back. Instead of being, as it is in this country, a slushway. Given a wall, it would be the duty of the critic to keep an eye on it, and to plug a leak whenever he spotted it.—Chicago Tribune

ENGLAND'S REPLY.

Sir Edward Grey, in his reply to the protest of the United States against interference with neutral commerce, comes dangerously near justifying some of the acts of Germany, against which the United States has made vehement protest. "I need scarcely dwell," he says, "on the obligation incumbent upon the allies to take every step in their power to overcome their common enemy in view of the shocking violation of the recognized rules and principles of civilized warfare, of which he has been guilty during the present struggle."

Now, Sir Edward's philosophy is based upon the theory that one bad turn deserves another bad turn, or that one wrong justified another wrong. He harks back to an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth doctrine. What Germany has done to England or what England does to Germany does not concern the United States. If England takes the position that she may violate the rights of the United States or any other neutral in order to overcome what she considers a brutal and barbarous enemy, that position is untenable.

Sir Edward holds that because Germany can ship so easily through Holland, that in order to blockade Germany effectively, England, in a way, must blockade Holland. He further insists that the old form of blockade is no longer possible because of submarines, and that what we used to call a "paper blockade" has a certain value.

The logic of Sir Edward's position is that it would establish the English line of blockade beyond the steaming radius of submarines. This means that the country having dominion over the seas could extend this blockade over the entire sea.

England holds tenaciously to a right to exclude from the high seas all commerce from Germany and all commerce to Germany.

England also stretches the doctrine of ultimate destination to the limit.

England would forbid the exporting of even food to Holland if the empire came to the conclusion that part of the food is intended for Germany. In a word, England would permit food to be exported from the United States into Holland or to Norway only in quantities sufficient for the normal needs of those countries.

What England wants to do is to prevent the United States sending cotton to Holland if that cotton in Holland is to be spun into cloth and sent across the border into Germany.—Commercial Appeal

Sedateness the Better Quality.

In zoological gardens it is interesting to observe the difference in the demeanor between monkeys and the higher type, the gorillas. The monkeys are nervous, alert, their eyes darting here and there as their attention keeps changing. But the gorillas are much quieter, much more serene. When they turn their attention to an object they regard it soberly, looking it straight in the face. They are not the prey of a multitude of superficial reactions. On the contrary, they have control. A similar difference exists among human beings. Some people pride themselves on their quick superficial reactions. They are always disturbed, keyed up, on the go. But they merely skim the surface of experience. The quieter people, looking life straight in the face, controlled, serene, see far beneath the external. They live in the depths seldom or never reached by agitation and storm.

He Earns His Bread.

A good dog story being always in order, it is pleasant to have a good dog story to tell by way of wind-up. A Georgia lady has a St. Bernard dog that is a perfect jewel. He is sent out to the pasture every morning with the cows, and every evening he brings them safely home. In milking, he keeps away the calf, and then he carries home the pail. Around the house he makes himself useful in many ways, bringing in wood and running errands, and he also works the treadmill by which the butter is churned. And take notice, boys—he does all these things without pay, and never asks for a holiday. But the faithful fellow is put to another remarkable use. Every summer he is sheared, and his silken wool spun into yarn! Who says that dog doesn't earn his board?—Exchange

June the Month of Weddings.

In contrast to May, June is considered a particularly fortunate month for weddings, and for this we may hark back to Ovid for authority. Recognizing the un auspicious character of May, he carefully investigated the calendar to determine the best time for his daughter's wedding, and finally selected June as "good to the man and happy to the maid." But the choice of June has never been so general as the avoidance of May. The ancient Greeks preferred January to all other times. In Russia there is a belief that matches made at Easter bring wealth; at Ascension, health; at Whitsunday, domestic peace and happiness, and at Trinity, many children.

OIL AND GAS

Scivally Petroleum company is shipping a pumping outfit to its No. 2 in the northwest quarter of section 15-4-3, and a test of the production of this well will soon be made. The well was shot and has been cleaned out. It is being watched with much interest on account of its location,—to the southeast,—where many old men are looking for an important extension of the field to be developed.

M. W. Shriver was a visitor to the Paden well while it was being drilled in. He was at the well almost one entire night, and it is his opinion that the sand is not thick enough to make a good well, and that salt water will keep it ever from being a good well. However, the Prairie Oil company has made a location about six miles north of the initial well in section 12, in the next township north and it is probable that a field will be developed. The Prairie people have been purchasing acreage even since the initial well was drilled in.

Reports received here from the new well at Francis in Pontotoc county are not as favorable as those sent out from that city. The depth of the well is 1,300 feet, the production of gas is said to be very good but the oil did not make a good showing. The well is said to be somewhat like those in the Ada field which is about eight miles away. Many of the oil men look upon the Ada country with much favor and they believe that a strike will be made up there some of these days that will open up a field. McMan Oil company and the Corsicana Petroleum company are drilling there now and some good tests may be expected. Jack Sankey is also in that field with the drill and if there is any oil there Jack will come pretty near uncovering it.

Pipe Line Runs.

The pipe line runs during the past week have been very encouraging to the field. It is believed now that the Magnolia people will make large runs and may run to the full capacity of the line. The line from the field to Addington is a six-inch and from there to Fort Worth is an eight-inch. There has been a rumor that the six-inch line would be looped, but that, probably, is not true. At least, it is not probable that the line will be looped in the near future. It is said that this short line, although it is of smaller dimensions, can convey almost, if not fully as much oil, as the eight-inch line, which is much longer.

Although encouraged by the increase in runs, the oil men are eager for an advance in the price. Oil has been advanced in the northern fields, in central Texas and at Electric. However, there can be no hope of an immediate advance here. There is much more production than there is pipe line capacity, and as long as that condition remains there will not be any material advance in price.

The Gates Company.

That a controlling interest in the Gates Oil company has been purchased within the last few days, is the opinion that prevails here. In the company as it was originally organized, there were fourteen persons, who held equal shares. It is stated that seven full shares and some scattering stock has been purchased, which will carry a controlling interest in the company. B. A. Simpson, president of the company, made the purchases, but for whom it is not known. Mr. Simpson went to Oklahoma City following the purchases, and this gave rise to the opinion among some of the producers that the Roxana company was back of the deal. Others were of the opinion that Frank J. Phillips of Bartlesville was the purchaser. Men who are in a position to know make the statement positively yesterday that Mr. Phillips did not own one dollar's worth of the stock.

The original stockholders were P. C. Dings, C. E. Sykes, Dave Daube, B. A. Simpson, Frank Gates, G. A. Spaulding, J. L. Hamon, Mark Kirkpatrick, Homer Hinkle, Z. L. Boles, Chas. von Weise, Errett Dunlap, Lawrence Dunlap, and John Simpson. The stock has sold all the way from 130 to 250.

Restrained Indignation.

Uncle Henry Barnes was a mild man, but when John Ragland deliberately cheated him out of $900, even his patient spirit was ruffled. "Sometime," he remarked to his wife, "I'm going to tell that man what I think of him." One day he came home highly satisfied with himself. "I saw John Ragland today, and I told him straight out what I thought of him," he said. "What did you say?" asked his wife. "I told him I thought he was a very unreasonable man."
